Aerobics isn't simply for grown-ups

Kids learn modified exercises

By Suzanne Sproul

Two young girls with ponytails giggled as they tried to match their footsteps with the beat of the music.

They didn't quite make it.

And next to them, a boy about their age simply stopped what he was doing and smiled almost apologetically.

Adolescence can be a hard time, especially when you're trying to look as graceful as possible.

"They're only kids, but I think the idea of aerobics appeals to them. They're curious. But because they're still growing and their coordination and balance aren't there, I modify some of the exercises. But they have a lot of energy to expend. They challenge me," said Liz Hunsicker.

Hunsicker instructs coed afterschool aerobics for children 8 to 12 for the Upland Recreation Department. The class' goal is to help get youngsters in shape while they have fun and learn proper nutritional tips.

Why not start early, while exercise habits are still forming? asks Hunsicker.

Even after a full day of school, children have plenty of extra energy and need constructive ways to use it up, Hunsicker believes.

Liz Hunsicker encourages her after-school aerobics students in Upland to have fun while exercising. Class is for those 8 to 12.

With singer Ray Parker Jr. barking out his hit "Ghostbusters" on a nearby cassette player, Hunsicker encouraged her students to stretch and bend.

"OK, come on, you're looking good. Hey, who ya gonna call? GHOSTBUSTERS," she shouted.

Class had begun.

"I wanted a program of exercise for them. Kids are lacking in self-confidence so I thought a class of this sort not only would help them physically but psychologically, too," she said. "These types of exercises help them with their flexibility

Authorities in Chino get ready for 'big one'

By Diana E. Lundin

Without warning, the phones stopped working at about 10:25 last Thursday morning in the basement of the Chino police facility.

But that wasn't the worst to happen to the city. Just before 7 a.m., an earthquake measuring 8.3 on the Richter scale shook Southern California, leaving Chino with extensive damage.

All of this, of course, was an earthquake preparedness drill, given a realistic sense of urgency by the shake that rattled the Southland on Oct. 1.

The Chino emergency office, located in the earthquake resistant basement of the Police Department, was the hub of activity as volunteers began their assignments at 9 a.m.

The scenario was this: A rolling earthquake rumbles through the county just before 7 a.m., causing some damage.

But two minutes later, a temblor measuring 8.3 on the Richter scale rips through the county, causing death and severe injuries to many Chino residents.

Fires break out, residents are in panic, traffic lights have malfunctioned, an overpass at the Pomona (60) Freeway and Central Avenue collapses and electricity goes out.

To top it off, the temperature is a toasty 105 degrees, and aftershocks are expected.

In short, Chino is a wreck.

Youngster's writings will live on forever thanks to publication of diary

By Betsy Brady

*But wouldn't it be great to be able to fly
Over the rainbow and beyond the sky*

Jaimie Peterson ended one of the many poems she penned with that passage.

Her parents believe the words aptly convey their precocious 9-year-old daughter's hopes and dreams.

When Jaimie slipped into a coma and died Sept. 29 after a year-long struggle with brain cancer, Scott and Wendy Henderson chose the poem for her epitaph.

"That's just kind of the way she was," Scott said Wednesday.

In a tribute to his step-daughter, Henderson plans to publish Jaimie's diary about her hospital experiences and feelings about terminal illness.

A prolific writer, Jaimie began writing about her experience with brain cancer last March. Aside from her assessments on hospital food and radiation treatments, the diary is sprinkled with her poems and drawings.

"She wrote a lot in the car," traveling to and from Children's Hospital of Orange County for chemotherapy treatments, Henderson said.

Doctors told Henderson that children stricken with brain tumors were extremely intelligent, having light years more insight and knowledge than their peers.

"Jaimie was a special little girl. She was really vivacious," he said.

Jaimie died at her Southridge Village home in Fontana from glioblastoma multiforme, a highly malignant brain tumor.

She spent her last week of life in a coma. Prior to that, she suffered an extreme amount of uncontrollable pain, her stepfather said.

Throughout it all, Jaimie never gave up the battle to survive, he said.

"Up until the end she was planning who she wanted to invite to her birthday party, what she was going to be for Halloween. In the last few days, she was worried about missing so much school," he said.

The Hendersons discovered a year ago August their daughter, after complaining of headaches, had a tumor growing in her brain. Immediate surgery was able to remove most of the growth and monthly chemotherapy treatments kept the tumor inactive.

But last July a CAT scan showed the tumor had grown and was spreading in her brain.

The Hendersons, married six years, solicited donations from the community to help send Jaimie to Japan for special cancer treatment.

After raising $25,000, Jaimie went to Japan only to discover the tumor had grown too large for doctors to perform an operation.

She returned to Children's Hospital for special chemotherapy treatment, but her parents knew it was only a matter of time when they would lose Jaimie.

"When I first found out I had cancer I was very scared," Jaimie wrote in her first diary entry.

When told she would have to have an operation, "I better do it. It wasn't that bad. I did feel a little bit dizzy."

"My first chemotherapy was terrible. I sat in bed a week and it wasn't fun. At first I used to yell, scream or holler. Do you ever feel like running away? Well, I felt like running away."

"They need some new color TV's in the hospital...I'd rather be at school than at the hospital," she confessed.

Throughout her depictions of the bad taste left in her mouth from the radiation, or the pills she had to take or her hair loss, Jaimie would look on the bright side: "As long as it helped me it's OK."

Henderson thought after Jaimie died he never wanted to step foot in the Orange County hospital again, but his attitude has changed.

Erin Deneen, 9, tries to follow instructions in her class.

and should prepare them for other sports. I've seen progress already."

During one series of exercises, Hunsicker quietly relayed a message to her students.

"You should be doing these stretch exercises every day while you're watching television, now shouldn't you?" she suggested.

And before the class ended, Hunsicker held up a cardboard poster with a picture of a heart and information about the body's most important muscle. She told children the value of eating right and exercising.

And later after a rousing exercise routine to the recent hit, "La Bamba," each student put two fingers on his neck to check his heartbeat.

"Exercise is important at any age, but particularly when they're young. Good foundations should be set then," Hunsicker said.

Hunsicker also teaches adult classes with the Upland Recreation Department and the West End YMCA.

But the emergency volunteers were cool as cucumbers, as they fielded messages from the outside and talked to each other within to get the most up-to-date information available.

Representatives from the schools, hospital, fire and police departments, ham radio operators, the Red Cross, public works and others banded together to respond to the simulated earthquake.

Nearby at a simulation booth, a team directed the exercise, giving new information to some volunteers to step up the pace.

At 11, an aftershock was simulated, complete with a roaring noise filling the basement.

An "events log" posted all of the crises of the day in chronological order. When the simulation team yanked the phone system, the volunteers had to rely on walkie-talkies and the ham radio operators from RACES — Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Services — to communicate.

Chino Police Lt. Tom Thompson said the drill lasted until 12:30 p.m. with a critique scheduled until about 2 for the 47 participants.

"Realistically, most of our people wouldn't be here yet," said Thompson at about 10:50 a.m. "It's just four hours into the quake."

Observer Lee Mitchell said Chino's preparation for the exercise was outstanding.

"Exercises can be chaos, sheer disasters in themselves," said Mitchell, the county's emergency services coordinator from the Public Health Department.

Flight caps for ONT likely to be lifted

By Lee Peterson

A federal limit on flights at Ontario International Airport probably will be lifted, allowing for expansion of the facility, ONT's manager said recently.

Michael DiGirolamo said he is "very optimistic" that the federal Air Resources Board will rescind a standing cap of 125,000 "operations" — landings with takeoffs — at ONT.

Once that takes place, the path toward building a $196-million terminal will be clear, DiGirolamo told a gathering of Rancho Cucamonga business people.

Without relaxed restrictions, by 1992 the average traveler will no longer be able to fly without booking seats far in advance.

"If you could make your reservations three or four months in advance you will get a seat, but if you intend to go to Las Vegas or San Francisco the next weekend, you are not going to make it," said DiGirolamo, who had just returned from a six-week airport management conference in Montreal.

By the time the airport reaches the 125,000 annual operations limit, ONT still will be well under the passenger capacity of 12 million, airport officials report.

DiGirolamo said ONT should be able to convince the Air Resources Board to amend the flight limit. The board controls the capacity of the airport as a function of the air pollution it produces.

He reasoned that there would be less smog if Inland Empire residents were allowed to fly out of their local airport rather than having to make the freeway trek to Los Angeles International Airport because ONT had reached capacity.

Under current air board limits, airports in the Los Angeles metropolitan area will be operating at capacity by 1992, according to the Regional Airport Authority, DiGirolamo said.

Flight operation capacity at ONT is "eaten up" by freight operations and commuter flights which transport very few passengers, he noted. ONT is the nation's 16th busiest freight airport.

In addition to the expansion of ONT, the creation of another major facility in the Los Angeles area — possibly at the Palmdale airport — also will be necessary, he said.

In order to apply pressure to airlines to support the building of a new terminal for ONT, DiGirolamo said the flight operations cap will have to go.

Airlines such as American and Delta are hesitant to back a major expansion as ONT rapidly approaches its flight limit.

"The big fly in the ointment is going to be the ARB thing," he said.

DiGirolamo lauded plans for the new ONT terminal, especially the traffic flow design. "We are building a new airport basically," he said.

The expansion is paid for by the airlines through the landing fees charged for use of the terminal.

Regardless of the expansion, DiGirolamo said the days of being able to roll into ONT and be on your flight within 20 minutes are long gone.

Passengers should allow an hour to 1½ hours when they use ONT, he said.

School construction deadline moves up

The construction timeline for Rancho Cucamonga's third high school has been moved ahead a year to keep up with growth.

The school, recently named Rancho Cucamonga High School, will be built in four years instead of five.

It will be located just west of Rochester Avenue and just north of Victoria Avenue, roughly halfway between Etiwanda and Alta Loma high schools, two other Chaffey Joint Union High School District schools in the city.

The school will open with 1,500 students and be built to hold 2,500 eventually, said Sue Sundell, representative to Chaffey district Superintendent Mike Dirksen.

In the meantime, Alta Loma High School is at capacity and the third phase of construction has started at Etiwanda High School.

"We're looking at a school for the 21st century, and it has to be built very differently than schools that were built 15 or 20 years ago," Sundell said.

Within a year, planning will start for a high school in South Ontario, Sundell said.

The elementary school population in South Ontario's Mountain View School District has grown by 56 percent in the last two years, and is expected to double because of incoming housing developments.

Poor management prompted Popoff to pull the plug

By Kimberly Heinrichs

It was poor management rather than the disclosure of deceptive practices that forced him into bankruptcy, the Rev. Peter Popoff said Thursday.

"It was one more negative thing," he said of magician James Randi's May 1986 revelation that the Upland faith healer was using a radio transmitter to receive information on crusade attendees.

The evangelist said contributions fell after Randi's appearance on the "Tonight Show" and subsequent news coverage, but he could not say by how much.

"It (the budget) was stretched so tight that even a small drop was precarious," he said.

Popoff spoke in San Bernardino during a hearing on his petition for Chapter 7 bankruptcy for himself and his wife Elizabeth, his defunct organizations, the Peter Popoff Evangelistic Association and A & N Advertising Inc.

His attorney has listed 799 possible creditors, including banks, television and radio stations, Lewis Homes, former devotees and an Ohio evangelist to whom he had lost a court battle.

According to his bankruptcy documents, he owes the creditors approximately $1.3 million. His remaining property is valued at about $814,000.

Popoff told Hanover that the association has about $16,000 left in two bank accounts. In addition he has stored office and television equipment of unknown value in an Upland storage yard, he said.

Despite his apparent success on American and Canadian television stations, Popoff said that he was headed for financial trouble for several years.

"It (the organization) had gotten a lot of publicity," he said. "But it was deeply, deeply in debt since the beginning of 1984."

The evangelist said one of the string of controllers he had employed warned him in 1985 to cut the television spots, but he didn't listen.

"They had broadened the spectrum to an extent that was larger than his income," his San Bernardino attorney, William Simon, said. "Peter is a minister, not a business manager."

During Thursday's hearing before U.S. Trustee N.L. Hanover, Popoff revealed that he had received $5 million in contributions during 1986. However, his organization spent $7 million that year, Simon said.

Although he didn't file for bankruptcy until August, the ministry that he began in 1976 fell apart in January, he said.

Busing begins after 71 sign petition

Busing started last week for about 35 children in the Los Olivos housing project, after 71 people signed a petition asking for transportation for the youngsters.

Children from Los Olivos and the surrounding neighborhood have had to walk 1 1/2 miles to school at Foothill Knolls or walk a shorter route along busy Foothill Boulevard.

Administrators decided children in kindergarten through the third grade could be bused.

Children in fourth grade and above still will have to walk to school, said Upland schools Superintendent George Renworth.

A woman who lives near the public housing project started the petition, said Xenia Szabo, Upland Housing Authority executive director.

Although the board wasn't required to take any action, the board was "very supportive" on the transportation issue, Szabo said.

Richardson decision stuns officials

Veteran lawmaker announces he won't seek re-election to state Senate

By Richard Peraza

Local officials expressed shock and momentary disbelief last week upon hearing that state Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Lake Arrowhead, the outspoken conservative who has enraged liberal politicians for decades, will not seek re-election next year.

Richardson's 25th Senate District includes Upland and northern Rancho Cucamonga in the West Valley, and much of San Bernardino County's desert and mountain areas. It takes in all of Inyo County, and Azusa, La Verne, San Dimas, Glendora, Covina and Claremont in Los Angeles County.

According to Richardson's chief of staff, Michael Carrington, the senator surprised Sacramento last Thursday morning when, without warning, he announced the end of his 21-year Senate career.

"This is my last term. I've got other things I want to do," Richardson said. "I have paid my dues; I don't see any reason to pay them anymore."

Second District county Supervisor Jon Mikels was momentarily reluctant to believe the news. "It's doubly shocking for me," he said. "I met with Mike Carrington last week and he indicated a fund-raising event for December was in the works. We discussed days, dates and arrangements. ... I mean, it's just a few days later."

"That does surprise me," agreed Rancho Cucamonga Mayor Dennis L. Stout, who confirmed that, "as recent as last week he (Richardson) had advance people in this area gathering support for his re-election."

"I'll tell you one thing," Stout said, "he's certainly been a mainstay in Republican politics for many years ... well respected."

"This is the first I've heard of it," echoed Upland Mayor Richard Anderson. "I find it very interesting. Some time ago we had been advised he would not seek re-election. Then, in the middle of spring, we were advised he was going to seek re-election."

Carrington said the state's See RICHARDSON/Page 7

Help being sought

The Volunteer Center of the Greater Pomona Valley has various positions available.

For more information, call 623-1284.

Positions include:

- Volunteer Center of the Greater Pomona Valley has openings for people with interviewing skills. Training is provided.
- Rancho Santa Ana Botanic

Gardens in Claremont has a docent training program each Friday for seven weeks from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Gift Shop help also is needed.

• Braille Institute/Joslyn Center in Claremont needs people to do craft work and sighted guides.

• The Chaffey Adult School English as a Second Language Program needs teacher's aides in Ontario and Montclair.

• Therapeutic Equestrians in Upland needs people to help disabled people ride for pleasure, competition and therapy. Help is needed Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

Arts foundation

Free grant guidelines workshops will be held to explain the application process of The Arts Foundation of San Bernardino County.

These workshops will outline how to plan a fundable project, write a successful application, prepare a budget and document past successes.

Grants are made to qualified San Bernardino County non-profit applicants engaged exclusively in arts programming or offering programs in the arts and whose application is recommended for funding by a peer panel review process which the foundation administers.

About $145,000 will be made available to qualified applicant projects. These funds are made possible through the San Bernardino County Board of

Grant applications are available from the foundation by calling 387-5997.

Deadline for receipt of completed applications is Nov. 30 at 5 p.m. Applications must be received by the deadline date.

liberals will get no relief, however. "He (Richardson) said he is not retiring from the political process, he still intends to be very active. He intends to be involved with the political organizations he started, and he may create some others."

"I am not retiring from working in the political vineyards," Richardson confirmed. "Squeezing left-wing grapes is still too much fun."

Alta Loma twins together fight medical woes

By Suzanne Sproul

Rebecca and Sarah Anderson came into this world too early.

And during the 19 months since the Alta Loma twins were born, the sisters have faced a continuous struggle to overcome a series of medical problems.

But the girls, backed by a loving and supportive family, are fighters.

The girls were born three months prematurely and almost from the minute they came into this world, they have fought an uphill battle, according to their mother, Barbara Anderson.

"They were on respirators the first day. Sarah had a brain bleed where the blood vessels in her head weren't developed. The doctors treated that. Then the doctors told me both girls had apnea — they simply would forget to breathe. Sarah was the really sick one. She had heart problems.

"The first day was traumatic for me. The doctors told me the next three or four days would be critical. The first time I saw the girls was by way of four Polaroid pictures showing tiny little pink things with stuff all over them. I had a Caesarean section, but I forced myself to get up and go see them in the neonatal unit," said the 26-year-old mother.

Anderson said she then was faced with making many crucial medical decisions.

"It was very difficult. I'm very grateful I had my family and friends. I don't think I could have done it without my family," she said.

Sarah remained hospitalized at the San Bernardino County Hospital. Rebecca, seemingly healthy, was allowed to go home.

"I wanted to be home with Becky but in the hospital with Sarah Jean. We would go to the hospital twice a day for four months before Sarah came home," Anderson said.

Anderson also has a rambunctious 4-year-old son, Timothy, to look after.

Then doctors found built-up scar tissue in Rebecca's throat, making it very difficult for her to eat and breathe.

Doctors performed a tracheotomy. Rebecca then had to learn to breathe with an open

It's not the first time he's publicly announced his retirement, however. He made an identical announcement in November 1982, then reversed it in April 1983.

But Richardson said there will be no more turn-arounds. "It's irrevocable. People will waste their time, energy, and effort trying to change my mind, plus it will tick me off."

"We've been deluged with phone calls," Carrington said. "A number of people are very upset about it." But he added that Richardson sees his district — which is about 51 percent Republican — passing into good hands because Assemblyman Bill Leonard, R-Redlands, has indicated an interest in it.

PARENTS ALERT!

There is a tendency when a child has crowding (crooked) teeth to wait too long for correction (braces).

In our office many times early extraction with periodic examinations has corrected some cases.

Also removable orthopedic appliances can correct these problems at an earlier age. Bring recent x-rays for a diagnosis. Call for a regular appointment and present this article on first visit for discount.

YOUR "PERSONAL INJURY" RIGHTS

Thomas W. Moga,
Attorney At Law

Former Insurance Adjuster
Former Insurance Trial Lawyer

CAN I COLLECT IF THE OTHER PERSON DOESN'T HAVE INSURANCE?

YES, IF THE RESPONSIBLE PARTY HAS SUFFICIENT INCOME OR PROPERTY TO PAY YOUR DAMAGES. It costs about $800 to conduct an asset investigation. If the investigation shows that the responsible party has sufficient income or property to pay your claim, then you can pursue your claim even though that person has no insurance.

CHECK TO SEE IF YOU HAVE "UNINSURED MOTORISTS INSURANCE COVERAGE" If you have this, then you will collect your damages from your insurance company. This is where you have to be careful. Do not discuss your case with your insurance company until you have had legal advice. Your insurance company is now your adversary and not your friend.

CHECK YOUR UNDER-INSURED MOTORISTS COVERAGE. If you have sustained a serious injury and the other party only has minimal insurance, your insurance will have to take over and pay the additional costs and damages. When this occurs, once again your insurance company is your advisor and not your friend. Consult your attorney before you discuss this with your insurance company.

There is no charge for a consultation regarding your personal injury case. Also there is no fee unless we recover damages on your behalf.

Medical Enterprises. "I needed to go back to work. That's when my family took over," she said with a smile.

Anderson's sister, Lora, quit her job in order to stay home and look after her neices. Anderson's parents added onto their home so everyone could live in one house. And Barbara Anderson's best friend learned cardiopulmonary resuscitation so she would be prepared if the girls' hearts stopped beating while she was babysitting.

"She was a very sick baby," said grandmother, Gloria Anderson. "We were very worried because she couldn't eat and would just lay there all day. Believe me, this has been a really life-altering experience. You realize how important life is when you spend four months in a neonatal unit."

Now Sarah is a well child, but Rebecca continues to have breathing problems. She's gaining weight and her red hair finally is starting to grow in.

She's had one throat operation a month for the past 17 months at Children's Hospital in Los Angeles.

"It's really comfortable to go there because the hospital has one entire floor just for children with tracheotomies. You meet parents who can relate to you and your child's problems," Anderson said.

Rebecca again will have surgery this month, but doctors will try a lazer technique which hopefully will correct the problem for good, the mother said.

"Then in two years she can have plastic surgery and that will be the end of it. Hopefully it will be all taken care of by the time Becky goes to school so no one will make fun of her.

"This has really changed my life. I used to think my job was so important. Then this happened and everything changes. I don't feel a need to see an end to it anymore. I think it's almost over now and we've won," Anderson said.

Trust fund for Upland officer is established

A trust fund has been established by the Upland Police Officers Association for officer John Carroll, who was critically wounded in a bank robbery.

The fund will benefit Carroll and his family.

"Our association is grateful for the assistance and support received from the public throughout this ordeal," said officer Greg Doyle, the executor of the account.

Anyone wishing to make a donation can send a check payable to the Upland Police Officers Association for the Officer John Carroll Fund, P.O. Box 460, Upland, Calif., 91785.

How to win the cold war.

It's time to take up arms.

Just follow these simple suggestions and you can defend your energy bill against high heating costs this winter.

Use energy wisely and save on your winter bill.

You can start saving simply by using your trusty caulking gun to weatherstrip and seal cracks and gaps around your windows.

You can also install attic and duct insulation. It can reduce your energy use for heating as much as 40 percent.

Better yet, you can install a new high-efficiency electric central heat pump in place of your existing system.

You'll save on your energy bill all winter long.

Call 1-800-952-5062 for your free booklet.

For more ways you can combat high energy costs, call us for your free booklet, Hot Tips for a Warm Winter.

You'll find all you need to help keep your heating bills down this winter. Like the latest energy-efficient improvements for your home. And tips on how to keep cozy without using a lot of heat.

Or talk to one of our representatives about more ways you can save.

With a little help, you'll win the cold war hands down.

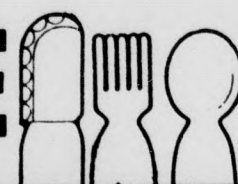

Together we can brighten the future.

Quake, heat reduce fair attendance

An earthquake and a heat wave kept some people away and prevented crowds from breaking the Los Angeles County Fair's 1985 attendance record of 1.4 million fairgoers.

But fair spokesman Paul Bahai said that crowds were very well controlled and well-behaved throughout the 18-day run.

"We've had no real problems," Bahai said. "The crowd has been real good and they have come out for a good time and really enjoyed themselves."

Pomona police reported that no major incidents occurred at the fair. The majority of arrests were for public intoxication, police reported.

The fair recorded one of its lowest attendance figures on Oct. 1 when a 6.1 earthquake caused extensive damage in the Whittier-Montebello area about 20 miles west of Pomona.

Bahai said there was no damage to any of the rides or exhibits following the tremor.

He said that 39,225 people passed through the gates that day compared to 50,245 the previous Thursday.

But on Oct. 2, 68,990 people attended the fair with 136,528 people on the fairgrounds the following day. That Saturday's attendance was slightly off due to temperatures exceeding 100 degrees, Bahai said.

Bahai said that the 1985 all-time record of 1,435,962 people will not be broken, but Sunday's crowd was expected to break the 1986 attendance record of 1,362,447.

Upland's Valencia Elementary School recently celebrated its 21st birthday.

The school originally opened on Oct. 3, 1966, with 443 students and 22 teachers.

Students and teachers joined together with their principal Carolyn Ruis in singing "Happy Birthday" to the school and enjoying the traditional birthday cake.

Teachers Nancy Pefley and Marge Jensen, who were among the original staff in 1966, were honored for their longevity of service.

Cable TV service to be switched

By Diana E. Lundin

Cable TV viewers in north Upland and San Antonio Heights are in for a switch.

The change actually occurred last Friday when Foothills Cablevision switched its service area with a firm doing business in La Verne.

Foothills Cablevision was franchised by the city of Upland to provide cable television services to the northern part of the city and San Antonio Heights.

Comcast Cable, formerly Group W, also was franchised by the city and gave cable service to all parts of Upland south of 19th Street.

Foothills Cablevision, meanwhile, had a franchise with La Verne while Comcast, which was licensed by the city, supplied service to portions not served by Foothills.

Last week, the two companies swapped service areas, with Comcast supplying all the cable services for Upland and San Antonio Heights, and Foothills providing cable television for La Verne.

"It makes good business sense because they're the predominant operator in La Verne and we're the predominant operator in Upland," said Comcast general manager Bill Verner.

Foothills general manager Joni Odum said the change, which began last Friday, had to do with operating efficiencies. Foothills served just over 1,000 customers in San Antonio Heights and northern Upland and Comcast had 435 customers in La Verne, Odum said.

But already one northern Upland customer is not pleased with the switch, particularly where the price of Comcast's services are concerned.

Under Foothills Cablevision, Ron Holk paid $47.40 a month for basic cable service and four movie channels for his two televisions.

But with Comcast, Holk found out he would be paying nearly $82 for the identical service.

"It's ridiculous and that, to me, is excessive," said Holk, who said he would be canceling the movie channels from his second set and maybe one pay station from his main television.
